Food and Farm Network

www.noffn.org

The New Orleans Food & Farm Network believes everyone should have access to fresh, healthy, and sustainably produced food for the long-term health of our environment, economy, and communities. We work with individuals, organizations, growers and communities to help make fresh, healthy food more accessible to everyone. We do this by: celebrating and supporting "what's right" in our local food system, bringing people together to identify gaps in access to fresh foods, creating, with our partners, neighborhood and city-wide food projects that fill those gaps for all members of the community.

Social Entrepreneurs of New Orleans

www.seno-nola.org

SENO's mission is to build a powerful community and ecosystem of support for social entrepreneurs so that social entrepreneurship will thrive and all citizens can act as agents of change. Just as Silicon Valley has become known as the center for technological innovation, New Orleans will become the hub of social entrepreneurship and innovation. We believe in harnessing the power of local diversity and the new participatory mentality to launch the problem-solver into action. New Orleans is at the forefront for the social change movement currently underway, and SENO is committed to sustaining this new energy by supporting social entrepreneurs who are committed to making deep social impact.

LifeCity

The mission of LifeCity is to empower citizens to transform cities into ecosystems by reducing waste through best practices, community organizing, and information transparency. LifeCity will enable both individuals and organizations to more effectively make environmentally sustainable choices through the use of three online tools: green guidance, green networks, and green maps. Users will be able to easily evaluate resource allocation options and other environmental decisions, considering both the financial and ecological impacts of potential choices.

Ressurrection After Exoneration

www.r-a-e.org

RAE will promote reform-minded leadership among those who have been imprisoned by assisting them during their transition process to ensure a successful reentry, and by empowering exonerees to confront and reform the system that victimized them.

Alliance for Affordable Energy

all4energy.org

The Alliance is a non-profit, public interest, membership organization dedicated to creating fair, affordable, environmentally responsible, community-based energy policies for Louisiana and the nation. Founded in 1985, today the Alliance serves Louisiana's 1.8 million electric and gas rate payers by promoting citizen participation in the decision-making process, conducting community education campaigns on energy issues, helping citizens and businesses become more energy efficient, and working together for lower energy bills.
