

The Initiative for Service Internships in International Development is intended to financially support internships for Carleton students who perform volunteer service in the areas of international community development, including business cooperatives, public wellness and treatment, literacy and education, and other public services in developing countries.

PROFILES OF RECIPIENTS AND HOST ORGANIZATIONS

Jason Anderson '12, Physics

Hometown: Duluth, MN

Jason will be spending the summer interning at the Center for Development with Dignity in Lima, Peru. His work at the center will involve him in teaching as well as in running after-school programs for children (music lessons, a poetry workshop, and a recreation sports league).

Dennis Ea '13, Biology

Hometown: Maplewood, MN

Dennis will join a University of Minnesota medical team from the Medicine for Sick Children Foundation to supply orphanages in Kampala, Uganda, with basic medical supplies. He will spend time shadowing doctors and medical students and will assist in follow-up data analysis regarding the orphans served in this project.

Reed Jordan '12, Political Science

Hometown: Roseville, MN

Reed's internship will take him to Peru to help install clean-burning cooking stoves in rural homes as well as to conduct surveys to measure the benefits. The installation of the clean-burning stoves is aimed at reducing the rate of premature deaths in Peru due to toxic emissions from poor-burning cooking stoves.

Hannah Kyle '12, Political Science

Hometown: Ithaca, NY

This summer, Hannah will be volunteering at the Center for the Working Girl (CENIT), a small non-profit organization in Quito, Ecuador that strives to help poor working children and their families improve their quality of life through education and other social services. Her efforts will focus on tutoring groups of children in the Ecuadorian street markets as well as in CENIT's tutoring program.

Will Ladner '12, Biology

Hometown: Wayzata, MN

This summer Will plans to participate in Child Family Health International's Infectious Disease Eradication in Amazonian and Highland Ecuador volunteer internship program. The main goal of his internship is to provide day-to-day aid in combating tropical diseases in Ecuador.

Jesse Pittman '12, American Studies

Hometown: Annapolis, MD

Jesse will intern this summer with the Light and Leadership Initiative (LLI) in Peru. Light and Leadership is a small non-profit organization based in Chicago that works exclusively in the poorer areas of Huaycán, a suburb of Lima. Jesse will spend her time there teaching English classes to both children and adults.
