Course Description

Inequality has risen in many countries around the globe and is becoming an increasingly divisive political issue. Motivated in large measure by concerns of economic inequality, movements such as Occupy Wall Street, and the protests of the Arab Spring have tested governments around the world. Debates over inequality and the appropriate role for the government in mitigating inequality through the redistribution of income have proven to be among the most contentious in democratic politics. In this course, we will examine in detail how economic inequality shapes politics around the world.

Over the course of the term, we will explore the interactions between economic inequality and politics in two general ways. First, we will explore the different sources of inequality, as well as policy recommendations to combat inequality. Second, we will examine how economic inequality affects the political process, especially in the quality of democratic institutions. Can the democratic ideal of political equality survive in a context of increasing economic inequality?

Course Requirements and Expectations

Classroom discussion and participation will be a critical component of our classes. To facilitate insightful and interesting discussions, you are required to complete the assigned readings before each class and contribute to class discussions. Generally the reading load will be around 150 to 200 pages per week. In addition to the readings which will be made available electronically on Moodle and Dropbox, there are two required texts for purchase: Anthony Atkinson's book Inequality: What can be done?, and Martin Gilens' book Affluence and Influence. I also encourage you to pay attention to current events related to the issue of inequality, which we will also discuss in class.

Grading

Your grade will be based on the following:

Class Participation and Attendance	10%
Covert Ideologue in 4 class sessions	20% (5% Each)
Two Critical Analysis Papers (Oct. 9 and Nov. 17)	20% (10% Each)
Course Research Project	50 %
Proposal (Due Sept. 29)	5%
Theory and Research Design Paper (Due Oct. 6)	5%
Analysis Paper (Due Oct. 15)	5%
Draft Paper (for peer review) (Oct. 27)	5%
Peer Review of Draft Papers (Nov. 3)	5%
Class Presentation (Nov. 12 & Nov. 17 in class)	5%
Final Paper (Nov. 10)	20%
<hr/>
Total	100%

Class Preparation, Attendance and Participation - 10%

Attendance and participation is required. You are expected to have completed the readings for the day.

At the start of class, you will turn in a note card including a discussion question or comment based on the readings for the day. This can be a request for clarification on something that didn't make sense, a criticism, or some other thoughts that you think would be interesting to discuss. We will take a minute at the start of class to go over some of these comments as a class and discuss them.

Covert Ideologue - 20%

In four class sessions (beginning on Sept. 24), you will be assigned an ideological identity which will be kept secret from all of your peers. I will assign these identities randomly – you will only know your own identity and none of your peers. In the course of the class session, you will put forth points supporting your assigned ideological view point (even if they may be at odds with your personal perspectives). Ideally you should do so without revealing that you have been assigned an identity, although it may be that people figure you out.

Prior to a class where you have an assigned identity, you should email me a short memo (email is fine – you don't need to write a document) with some bullet point arguments you intend to make in class. Your email memo is due at 11:59pm on the day PRIOR to the class (ie. if you have the class on Sept. 24, please email me by 11:59pm on Sept. 23). Email memo and class performance each will count for half of this grade.

If you have concerns about your identity or want to talk over some of your strategies prior to the start of class, please meet with me in advance of class.

Two Critical Analysis Papers - 20%

For two class sessions, you will write a critical analysis paper on the readings for the day. You may choose any class session (including ones where you have a covert identity). The first critical analysis paper will cover the first half of the course, while the second will cover any class in the second portion of the course. I encourage you to complete your critical analysis paper around the time of the class session you are writing on so that the discussion and readings are fresh in your memory.

Original Research Paper - 50%

Over the course of the semester, you will work on an original research paper in which you discuss and examine some topic relating politics with economic inequality. The final paper will be between 15 and 20 double spaced pages (not including references).

Research Proposal - 5%

Prepare a research question that is of interest to you and formulate a hypothesis that can potentially answer the question. Your proposal will be 2 or 3 double spaced pages, and will outline what your proposed research is, and how you intend to carry it out.

Theory and Research Design Paper - 5%

In this paper of around 4 to 6 pages, you will explore the literature around your research topic, and outline your plans to answer your research questions.

Analysis Paper - 5%

The analysis paper will be a sketch of the empirical findings of your independent research. This will become the results section of your final paper.

Rough Draft for Peer Review - 5%

Prepare a rough draft that matches the basic guidelines of the final paper. This will be graded on a pass/fail basis, and there will be NO EXCEPTIONS for late rough drafts.

Peer Review of Rough Drafts- 5%

Prepare a one or two page memo review of the rough draft for one of your peers, discussing the strengths and weaknesses of their paper project, as well as suggestions on how to improve it.

Class Presentation- 5%

In one of the final classes, you will present your research project to your peers.

Final Paper- 20%

The final paper should be a polished, finished project - perhaps something that you would feel comfortable submitting to an undergraduate research journal.

Course Policies

Grading Policies

I will assign grades using the following scale : A (93.33), A- (90), B+ (86.67), B (83.33), B- (80), C+ (76.67), C (73.33), C- (70), D+ (66.67), D(63.33) D- (60) F (Below 60). I do not round your final grade up or down (so if you receive a 93.327, you will receive an A- for a final grade).

Here are several important details regarding my policy on course grades

1. I will not receive grade complaints if more than two weeks have passed after the assignment has been returned. Before I review your grade you must first:
 - Wait 24 hours.
 - Schedule a time to meet with me to discuss your grade.
 - Submit a formal appeal in writing (email is sufficient—but be clear that it is the appeal in the subject heading) that clearly identifies content in the assignment and the reasons why you think your grade should be changed. These appeals should refer to specific things in the assignment, and not to vague reasons like “I worked really hard.”

The second grade, whether higher or lower, will become your grade on the assignment.

2. Late assignments are not tolerated. Your grade will be lowered 5 points for each day it is late (the exception is for the reading questions/comments, which will not be accepted if late). That is if the assignment is due on Wednesday and you complete it on Thursday, the highest grade you can make is 95. If you complete it on Friday, the highest grade possible will be a 90. And so forth.
3. The ONLY acceptable (not penalized) excuses for not completing an assignment on time are family emergencies or illnesses. However, in these cases, I will arrange to give you extra time ONLY if you communicate with me BEFORE the assignment is due and you provide DOCUMENTATION of the circumstance.

Electronics in Class Policy

You are welcome to bring digital equipment (laptop, ebook reader, etc.) to class. However, I expect you to be responsible in your use of electronic equipment: please avoid visiting social networking sites, or otherwise browsing the internet on sites unrelated to the course. I would also recommend you read through the discussion (including comments), Computers in the Classroom, to think about the possible pros and cons of using computers in a classroom setting. Individuals who abuse this privilege will be asked to turn off their computer. Please turn off all cell phones during class. If I notice that the use of an electronic device is distracting you in class, your participation grade will suffer.

Academic Honesty

You are expected to abide by fundamental standards of academic honesty. A discussion of plagiarism can be found at: <https://apps.carleton.edu/campus/doc/integrity/>. All work is expected to be your own. Cheating, plagiarism (using someone else's words or ideas without properly citing them), and all forms of academic misconduct will not be tolerated and will be strictly handled according to university policy. If you are uncertain, cite your sources!

Disability-Related Accommodations

It is the policy of Carleton College to provide reasonable accommodations to students with documented disabilities. Students, however, are responsible for registering with Disabilities Services, in addition to making requests known to me in a timely manner. If you require accommodations in this class, please make an appointment with me as soon as possible (during the 1st week of the semester), so that appropriate arrangements can be made. The procedures for registering with Disabilities Services can be found at <http://apps.carleton.edu/disabilityservices/>.
