>> Tonight’s Game
  These two programs shared the MIAC regular-season crown a year ago. On Feb. 9, 2011, Carleton prevailed over the Tommies, 67-61, in the midst of an 11-game home winning streak. This was the Knights’ first regular season victory over St. Thomas since 2006. However Carleton bested the UST in postseason play in 2010 on its way to a conference tournament title.

>> Familiar Face
  Former Carleton men’s basketball assistant coach, Jim Hayes, is now an assistant coach on the St. Thomas bench. Hayes was the the top assistant for the Knights from 2004-2011 but made the transition to St. Thomas for family reasons (he, his wife Katherine [a Carleton grad] and their two kids live in St. Paul).

  Guy Kalland is in his 28th season at the helm of the Carleton program. He has had a number of former assistant coaches working in the college game, but this is the first time he’s coached against a former assistant. Kalland has squared off against one of his former players, Jake Phillips ’07, who has served as a part-time assistant at Augsburg College the last four seasons.

>> Weekend Recap
  Despite a career performance, for the second straight contest, from Caleb Rosenow, the Knights dropped their fourth straight, 60-62, on Saturday at Concordia.

  With the game tied 13-13 and 12:09 remaining in the first half the Cobbers made their initial run and led 39-30 at halftime. Rosenow, who matched his career-high 25 points, came up big for the Knights in the second half, Tying the score at 60-60 with 2:01 remaining. But, with 1:05 left to play, the Cobbers’ Andrew Martinson knocked down a fast-break jumper to give Concordia the 62-60 triumph.

>> Scouting St. Thomas
  After sharing the MIAC regular-season title with Carleton last season, the Tommies went on to win their first national championship. However that team lost four starters and one key reserve to graduation, and head coach Steve Fritz retired after 31 years at the helm of the UST program.

  St. Thomas still returned 10 players with varsity experience and leads the MIAC with a 5-1 record (8-3 overall) under 11-year assistant coach John Tauer. Players to watch include center Tommy Hannon (16.3 ppg), guard-forward John Nance (11.6 ppg, 4.0 rpg) and guard Will DeBerg (11.5 ppg).
