THE PRESIDENT’S CUP

- The St. Olaf and Carleton women’s basketball teams also compete for a traveling trophy, the President’s Cup. This prize does not have the long history that the Goat Trophy does.

Instituted by the two college presidents for the 2001-02 season, the President’s Cup is contested only once per campaign, with the site of that tilt rotating back and forth across the Cannon River. Tonight’s game serves as the designated contest this year.

DID YOU KNOW??

- Carleton matched its season high with 84 points against St. Kate’s on Jan. 7. That night, the Knights had five players reach double-digits in scoring: Ally Weaver & Amber Connor (14), Hannah Oken-Berg (12), Megan Milesanic & Annie Isler (11). It was the first time Carleton had five players with 10+ points since a 75-63 victory over St. Olaf on Jan. 13, 2007.

St. Olaf enters play with a 3-8 record overall and 2-6 record in MIAC play. Junior Elyse Erickson led the Oles in scoring in their first nine games, a role that Jamie Erdahl has taken over in the last two contests.

Erickson also has yet to be held below 14 points in a game this season, and leads in the MIAC in field goals made.

Erdahl is the Oles’ main weapon from outside, knocking down 25 of the team’s 43 three-point baskets.

St. Olaf relies heavily on their starters as three starters are in the top 12 in the MIAC for minutes per game. The lack of solid bench players coupled with Elyse Erickson fouling out in almost half of the Oles’ games has hurt St. Olaf a number of times. Despite being in the middle of the MIAC in steals per game, St. Olaf has the worst turnover margin in the MIAC.

The Oles are scoring a MIAC low 52.4 points a game this season but are holding the opposition to a MIAC best 57.4 points per contest.

St. Olaf is shooting only 35.9 percent as a team this season, including 25.1 percent from beyond the arc. The first figure is 12th of the dozen teams, with the second stat ranking ahead of only Macalester (19.5%).

Erdahl is the Oles’ main weapon from outside, knocking down 25 of the team’s 43 three-point baskets.
