::Riddle Answer::
You are a prisoner in a strange land. You have been sentenced to death but are being given one chance to live. The king of the land has decided to let you play a simple game to determine your fate: you are presented with two clay jars, one containing 100 white stones, and one containing 100 black stones. You are allowed to redistribute these stones any way that you like, but when you are finished all stones must be in the jars. After you have finished, both jars will be shaken up, you will be blindfolded, and you will be presented one of the two jars at random. You will pick one stone out of the jar given to you. If the stone is black, your life will be spared, if the stone is white, you will be executed immediately. How should you redistribute the stones to give yourself the best chance of survival?

Answer: The best chance at survival comes with a distribution as follows: put one black stone in the first jar, and all of the remaining stones in the other. This provides you with a 74.74% chance of survival.

SCA Profile: Simon Orlovsky ’17
Major: Computer Science
Preferred Pronoun: He/him/his
What have you enjoyed the most about being an SCA: I’ve really enjoyed getting to know my peers and the career counselors. The position has given me many opportunities for growth.
I also enjoy hearing updates from students that I help one on one.
Share something that people may not know about you: I really like coffee. I am interested in all aspects of it.
From the farming process to roasting beans to brewing techniques. I find the process of making coffee very calming.

How to answer: “Tell me about yourself”
- This is probably the first question that you are going to be asked in an interview.
- This is not an invitation to recite your entire life story
- Instead, it’s your first and best chance to pitch the hiring manager on why you’re the right one for the job.
- A formula that you can use is the Present-Past-Future formula
  - First you start with the present—where you are right now.
  - Then, segue into the past—a little bit about the experiences you’ve had and the skills you gained at the previous position.
- Finally, finish with the future—why you are really excited for this particular opportunity.
