CONNECTING AT CARLETON

A guide to employer engagement on campus

Carleton College
OUR STUDENTS

Carleton students are intellectually insatiable and constantly curious. Every facet of their collegiate experience—be it coursework, extracurriculars, internships, and research opportunities—empowers them to develop and define the kind of wide-ranging knowledge required to make meaningful contributions to the workplace and beyond.

• BRIGHT MINDS: Carls expect to be challenged—and they start by challenging each other every day. 80 percent graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school class.

• COMMUNICATORS: Through rigorous writing and quantitative requirements, our students develop skills across an expansive interdisciplinary curriculum. Carleton’s 9 to 1 student-to-faculty ratio demands direct interaction with professors.

• LEADERS: Our students thrive in leadership roles among 200-plus student organizations. If their peer community of choice doesn’t exist, they create it.

• JOB READINESS: Beyond campus, 60 percent of juniors and seniors have completed internships or research experiences.

• GLOBAL AWARENESS: 75 percent of all students study abroad at least once during their four years. International students make up nearly 10 percent of Carleton’s student body.

• INDEPENDENT THINKERS: The collegiate journey culminates with a unique senior capstone known as Comps, a self-directed, entrepreneurial project that integrates four years of research, writing, and presentation skills.

"Internships have been a great way for me to put classroom theory into practice. The hands-on work has provided a platform to enhance my problem solving and analytical skills while acquiring confidence in real life scenarios."

"Group projects have helped me develop as a writer and team leader. By creating data sets and determining variables, I’ve also been challenged to answer questions with little guidance—which I know will occur in the professional world."
