1. Which literary characters would you most want as a) your wingman/wingwoman, b) your only companion on a deserted island, and c) your cool aunt or uncle?
   a) As my wingwoman I think I need Emma Woodhouse from Emma, because she may be bad at matchmaking, but at least she tries, which is the most important thing.
   b) My first instinct for my deserted island companion would be Robinson Crusoe, because he already knows what’s up in that department.
   c) As my cool uncle I’m going to go with Don Quixote. I bet he tells good stories.

2. 6 words describing your experience as a Carleton English major:
   Enjoying regular meals before unemployment begins.

3. Tell us something that most of the other English majors don’t know about you.
   Most English majors probably don’t know that I once built a wooden sailboat.

4. Which book would you be okay never reading again and why? I probably shouldn’t admit that I ever read it the first time, but would be 100 percent okay never reading Twilight again. In my defense I read it on the recommendation of a friend. It caused me to seriously reconsider that friendship.
Quote of the Week

Notice Neptune, though,
Taming a sea-horse, thought a rarity,
Which Claus of Innsbruck cast in bronze for me!

STUDENTS, call in to ext. 4322 with the author and the name of the work; the first person to name the quotation correctly will win a “beautifully wrapped” Pepperidge Farm cookie package and a hand-made card from Carolyn with a special faculty signature! Last week found Jessie Hao a winner, correctly identifying the line from Allen Ginsberg’s “A Supermarket in California.” Clare Costello did not go unrewarded for her second-place attempt.
