To halt rising imprisonment and recidivist rates, Norway, Ireland, Canada and Zimbabwe have all reformed their penal systems by creating and supporting existing reintegration and transitional programs. With my Watson, I will work with the staff of reintegration organizations that provide anti-recidivism programs. By exploring these reintegration programs, I will not only be able to talk with staff members, but also to connect with women who are incarcerated and those who have been released. I will also gain their perspectives on the effectiveness of reintegration programs and what needs to be changed or improved in order to keep these women out of prison.

Read Robin’s Blog at:  http://robinwonsley.wordpress.com/