Money and time-saving tips
How to ensure you get the right books
What to budget for textbooks

You Need To Know

Buying College Textbooks: What you need to return a textbook

Textbooks for your classes.
They are there to help you and enrich your daily life.

Don't hesitate to ask store staff for assistance.

If you wait too long, the book you need may be gone.

If you return a different book or edition by then and there is another textbook available for the class,
return the book you want.

Don't return a book, even if you have dropped the class.

Don't highlight or write in new books or open them.

Return a book.

Keep your sales receipt in a safe place.

Unless you're buying in cash, find out before the purchase if a parent's credit card can be used.

It's easier to return a book during the first few weeks of class.

Avoid the crowd by shopping the store during Instructor's and book's.

List all the books that are required for each course.

Please note:

You can return a book if you have dropped the class or received a refund. Here are some tips:

- Get back your money if you have dropped the class.
- Check the return policy before you purchase.
- Make sure to read the store's return
- books you won't be using.
- Bring your class schedule or course syllabus.
- Use your textbook shopping tip or ask the ease.
- Look for textbooks that are easy to read.

Here are some suggestions for making your
For Textbooks Shopping Trip a little easier.

www.cengage.com
Phone: (609) 222-1647
Fax: (609) 418-6194

A Special Guide for First-Year Students

Return a book.
Your AFA on Textbooks

Your AFA on Textbooks

Questions and Answers:

1. Are There Any Ways I Can Save Money?

Some options for saving money on textbooks include:
- Renting textbooks instead of buying.
- Buying used textbooks.
- Downloading free or low-cost e-books.
- Sharing textbooks with classmates.
- Using digital textbooks or e-readers.

2. How Much Should I Budget for Buying Textbooks?

The cost of textbooks can vary widely depending on the course and the publisher. On average, students spend $1,200 to $1,500 per year on textbooks. Some courses require multiple textbooks, and these costs can add up quickly. It's important to budget for textbooks early in the term to avoid financial stress.

3. Why Do Some Textbooks Cost So Much?

Textbook costs are often high due to the use of expensive technology and the costs associated with producing and distributing the books. Publishers also need to recoup the costs of research and development, marketing, and other expenses related to creating and distributing the book.

4. How Will I Know Which Textbooks to Buy?

It's important to consult with your instructor to determine which textbooks are required for the course. You can also check the course syllabus or ask your classmates for recommendations.

5. Are There Some of the Most Frequently Asked Questions:

a) What goes into the price of a textbook?

The price of a textbook includes the cost of research and development, printing, marketing, shipping, and other administrative expenses. The price also reflects the value of the knowledge and expertise contained within the book.

b) What happens to my professor's course syllabus, which may appear on the textbook?

Your professor's course syllabus is important and should be taken seriously. It includes information about the course, including assignments, readings, and exams. It's important to follow the syllabus to succeed in the course.

c) How will I know which textbooks to buy?

It's important to consult with your instructor to determine which textbooks are required for the course. You can also check the course syllabus or ask your classmates for recommendations.

6. Are There Any Ways I Can Save Money?

Some options for saving money on textbooks include:
- Renting textbooks instead of buying.
- Buying used textbooks.
- Downloading free or low-cost e-books.
- Sharing textbooks with classmates.
- Using digital textbooks or e-readers.

7. How Much Should I Budget for Buying Textbooks?

The cost of textbooks can vary widely depending on the course and the publisher. On average, students spend $1,200 to $1,500 per year on textbooks. Some courses require multiple textbooks, and these costs can add up quickly. It's important to budget for textbooks early in the term to avoid financial stress.

8. Why Do Some Textbooks Cost So Much?

Textbook costs are often high due to the use of expensive technology and the costs associated with producing and distributing the books. Publishers also need to recoup the costs of research and development, marketing, and other expenses related to creating and distributing the book.

9. How Will I Know Which Textbooks to Buy?

It's important to consult with your instructor to determine which textbooks are required for the course. You can also check the course syllabus or ask your classmates for recommendations.

10. Are There Some of the Most Frequently Asked Questions:

a) What goes into the price of a textbook?

The price of a textbook includes the cost of research and development, printing, marketing, shipping, and other administrative expenses. The price also reflects the value of the knowledge and expertise contained within the book.

b) What happens to my professor's course syllabus, which may appear on the textbook?

Your professor's course syllabus is important and should be taken seriously. It includes information about the course, including assignments, readings, and exams. It's important to follow the syllabus to succeed in the course.

c) How will I know which textbooks to buy?

It's important to consult with your instructor to determine which textbooks are required for the course. You can also check the course syllabus or ask your classmates for recommendations.