Fencing on the ground, nearly two hundred Carls are completing externships this winter as part of their experience. The aims of the externship are to build networking skills, and the chance to connect with Carleton faculty, and staff in the host city, the opportunity to practice professional conduct, and to present themselves as a potential employee for their future employer. The externships are an integral role in helping Carls consider what motivates them, how to turn those ideas into reality, and the opportunity to consider future career opportunities. More than 250 Carls are completing externships this winter.

University & Winter Break Tips from the Career Center

Winter break isn’t just for externships. The time between fall and spring is a great time to consider your future. The Career Center is open throughout winter break and are able to visit one-on-one with students virtually as well as in-person. We are also happy to talk with parents about how to have constructive winter break conversations with students. Feel free to email your student:

- Kaity Ashby, career coach for the arts and humanities
- Sarah Hines, career coach for the sciences
- Matt Wilkinson, student success coach
- Lauren Mello, career coach for business and economics
- Michelle Bibring, career coach for business and economics
- Ava Aronoff, student success coach
- Elizabeth Page, student success coach

Externship and Winter Break Tips from the Career Center
