Position Title: Rhetoric Assistant for the Summer Writing Program.
The Summer Writing Program is a three-week residential summer camp open to current high school juniors interested in gaining a pre-college academic experience focused on college writing.

Who should apply?
Students who are interested in working with high school students in an instructional capacity should apply. Applicants from all majors are welcome. Rising juniors and seniors are preferred.

Position Schedule:
- A required training will take place during Spring term Reading Days. A date and time will be included in the hiring contract.
- The SWP Rhetoric Assistant Position is full time for the duration of the 3-week program.
- Daily hours of the program are 9-3. Although there are no evening or weekend supervisory responsibilities, there are extra evening hours for lesson planning and responding to student papers. Participation in weekend fieldtrips is optional.

Compensation: This position have been traditionally paid in a stipend, but may be switching to hourly pay. More salary information will be available soon. This position also includes a single room for the duration of the program session. Partial Board (daily breakfast and some lunches) is also included.

Desired Qualifications:
- Applicants must have an interest in working with high school juniors and seniors; prior experience working with adolescents is desired.
- Strong writing skills
- Enthusiasm for interdisciplinary, liberal arts learning
- Prior experience as a Write Place tutor or writing assistant is valued but not required.
- Applicant should have a strong sense of responsibility.

If you are interested in this position, please apply on our website. All applicants must apply by April 14, 2017. The application is available at go.carleton.edu/summer.

Any questions on the position should be directed to:
Deborah Appleman, dappleman@carleton.edu, or
Amanda Williams, ex: 4038, awilliams@carleton.edu